Comments	Context and objectives The European Academy of Paediatrics (EAP), part of UEMS, strives to promote the health of children and adolescents in Europe. One of its main mission is to secure adequate training of paediatric residents and specialists. Several years ago, the EAP has established a Working Group on Adolescent Medicine and Health, whose mission is to support initiatives in the field, in setting up training initiatives and publishing recommendations for the health care of young people. In 2019, the EAP, specifically the European Board of Paediatrics (EBP) has proposed to address the issue of adolescent medicine on a broader level and to create a new UEMS Multidisciplinary Joint Committee on Adolescent Medicine and Health to sensitize colleagues from other disciplines to the health care needs of adolescents and how to address them. Current state of the MJC There are currently around 39 members registered. They are either representatives of their country organizations or of their specialist sections, including among others disciplines such as Paediatrics, Dermato-venereology, Paediatric surgery, Radiology, Public Health, Paediatric Urology, Physical and Rehabilitation Medicine, Endocrinology and Child & Adolescent Psychiatry. During the first meeting of the MJC (April 2019) the participating members of the MJC have asked prof. PA Michaud to chair the MJC. The participants have agreed on the fact that education about adolescent issues should be part of the training syllabus of physicians, from the start within medical schools and then during the 'core training' of specialists of (almost) all specialties. Such a kind of syllabus should focus mainly on the specific aspects of adolescent health care, the issue of mental health and the important issue of transition care (e.g. transition from the child to the adult health care settings for individuals suffering from a chronic condition). Activities 2020-2021 In 2020, the work of the MJC has been suspended, due to the COVID pandemics. The year 2021 was marked by a net increase of undertakings, thanks to the strong commitment of a subgroup of very active MJC members. During three consecutive meetings (April, June, August), a document providing a short set of training objectives has been developed which should, in the opinion of the MJC members, be progressively incorporated in the training syllabus/ETRs of most UEMS disciplines. Unlike in other regions of the world, adolescent medicine is not yet recognized as a subspecialty in Europe so far, so that this list of training objectives is not submitted as a formal ETR, but rather as a short focused list of competences that all physicians encountering adolescents should possess. The elaboration of both the list of training objectives benefits from the experience of experts in adolescent medicine and health who belong to the Euteach program (www.euteach.com), an initiative fostering the training of health professionals in the field of adolescent medicine and health. Future actions

The document is currently submitted to the Presidency of UEMS and will be presented during the UEMS Advisory Board and Council Meetings in October 2021. The MJC members expect to receive feedbacks from specialty sections and country associations within the next few months, which will allow for the refinement of the draft and, hopefully, have it adopted during the 2022 April UEMS meetings.

In addition, the MJC members acknowledge the fact that implementing these objectives in the UEMS educational programs will not be easy, as most colleagues in charge of the training and supervision of residents do not themselves have the required educational background to do so. This is why, within the next two years, the members expect to develop a practical training package providing some basic references, slides and illustrations such as lively videos.
